Ina Haney: ——

Do you know that I was a divorcee for two days? For two days I didn't receive any mail! Now I am sure you don't love me anymore — yesterday I was only doubtful. Oh, well ——

I was greatly worried thinking you were ill. Consequently I waited for the mail man this morning — the result of which I almost strolled in late. But it was a relief to know that you are well.

This evening I am having Bureau supper at your house. Need I tell you I am sorry you are not there? And I wish you upon my feet, for they were soaking wet. When I arrived at the bridge however I thought the best place for them was on my feet — and so put them there — but not without appreciating how crazy I am.

Nell is unable to come with me this evening, and I shall have to go up alone. I shall leave the dispensary about 6.30 arriving at your house about 6.30. I shall be able to leave early, but I you only knew how I hate to make that trip alone; I am so disappointed, that if it weren't that I promised I hardly think I would go — could see the weather! Rain blue, and dreary. If the weather man don't stop treating me so shamefully. I am going up to his bureau and give him a piece of my mind. Yesterday the weather being nice, I wrapped my rubbers into a parcel and carried them home in my muff —; this morning I left in such a hurry that I could not take the time to put my rubbers on, but ran knee deep into puddles to catch the train. I caught the train, but as a wonder I didn't catch a cold as well. My rubbers in my muff, had no dryer effect especially as the weather is so nasty.

Joe, tell me whether you have received my mail regularly or not - for I see you only received I Wednesday's letter late. You goosey gander, of course you had to wait 5 days for a letter because I didn't know your address. I wrote the same Thursday I heard from you - and have written almost daily since. Also let me have your picture.

Here's hoping your dark client has a generous size pocket book, and has a heart to match it, I'll close with love

Frances.
